WHEELING, JULY 8, 1892.

OFFICIAL CALL

For a Republican State Convention to Nominates a State Ticket.

At a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee, held at the city of Parkersburg, February 22, 1892, it was ordered that a convention of the Republican party of West Virginia, to be held in the city of Huntington, in the county of Cabell, on Tuesday, August 3, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., to nominate candidates for the following named offices, to be voted for at the election to be held on Tuesday, November 8, 1892:

Governor, State Superintendent of Schools, Auditor, Treasurer, Attorney-General, two Judges of the Supreme Court of Appeals (one for the short term and one for the long term), and also two Presidential Electors at Large, and to transact such other business as the Convention may see proper to do.

It is recommended that each county be entitled to one vote in said convention for each 100 votes, or fraction thereof in excess of fifty votes, cast for President Harrison in 1888.

The Executive Committee of each county will please take early steps to secure to its county proper representation in said convention.

The co-operation of all voters is invited who believe in the policy of Reciprocity, of protection to American Working men, American farmers, and American manufacturers; who favor a sound currency, the upholding and development of the State, the correction of abuses in the educational, humane and other institutions of the commonwealth, and economy and reform in the conduct of several departments of the Government of the State.

W. E. STANLEY, Chairman.
 G. W. ATKINSON, Secretary.

FIRST DISTRICT

Congressional Convention.

A convention of the First Congressional District Republicans will be held in the city of Wheeling, W. Va., on Thursday, July 14, 1892, to nominate a candidate for Congress for said district, to be voted for at the election to be held in November next, and to transact such other business as may come before the convention.

One of the Carnegie Builders.

Some things appear more clearly now than they did through the smoke of Homestead's unhappy fight. The managers of the Carnegie industries sent notice to the sheriff of Allegheny county that they would require protection for their property exposed to the resentment of their late employees.

The sheriff made a little show of an effort to do his duty, and got out of the affair at an early stage. He was scarcely well out before the Pinkerton mercenaries were in, and in to the death of some of them.

They did not spring out of the ground in quick obedience to the waving of a magician's wand. Their coming had been carefully arranged. They met in Pittsburgh from points a thousand miles apart. They came armed and provisioned for assault or siege.

The Carnegie people had no intention of trusting to the state to protect their property by ordinary lawful methods. They intended to call on the sheriff so as to save their points under the law in case of damage to their property and a suit for damages. Their relations with the state through the sheriff were made believe. The Pinkertons were the real present business end of their plan of campaign.

It was the appearance of this force, gathered from beyond the limits of the state, that brought on the riot and the bloodshed. The same thing might have happened in New York and Chicago. Nobody can know this. The men of Homestead deny it.

The one thing that everybody does know is, that the mill owners had no thought of relying on the state for the defense of their property. In a suit for damages growing out of the affair this fact, which nobody can gainsay, may cut a figure to the detriment of the owners, as it has already in the eyes of those who favor decent lawful procedure.

Demanding all that can be demanded for the protection of property; insisting, as every honest citizen must, on the right of the owner to the fullest enjoyment of his property under the law as necessary to organized society; in the same spirit and for a like reason there can be nothing less than emphatic dissent from the riot-provoking course pursued by the owners of the works at Homestead.

Men who play tricks with the law, using its machinery only to juggle with, do not excite the admiration of sober-minded, thoughtful people.

What Have We Here?

Something terrible is in the air. There is a "conspiracy against Cleveland." The New York Evening Post is the Christopher Columbus of the stirring occasion. It must be true, for the Post is very near to the person of Grover the Only and would be too proud to go wrong in a matter of this moment.

It is a Democratic conspiracy, which the Post further describes as a mutiny. It shows itself in the vote of Democratic senators in favor of the silver bill, which action is interpreted by the Mugwump guardian of Mr. Cleveland's interests as clearly showing a cold-blooded desire to settle Mr. Cleveland's political hash.

The Post is filled with alarm lest there be mutineers of the same sort in the house; in which case they will follow the lead of the bushwhackers of the senate. Hoping to save something even in this late hour the Post urges that "all who in their hearts desire the election of Cleveland and Stevenson should fight against the bill as though it were their last battle on earth. They ought to use all the resources of parliamentary law to stop its progress."

That is to say, if the majority be in favor of passing the bill, the minority, "having in their hearts the desire" to win a Democratic victory at the polls, should do all they can to obstruct the proceedings and make the majority powerless. This is all very touching, but if the conspirators in the house be as hard hearted as the mutineers in the senate, they will go right ahead and pile clouds on Mr. Cleveland's beautiful grave, won't they?

We'll Be There

The Democratic press seems to forget that Mr. Campbell at first flatly declined to be chairman of the Republican national committee, then accepted with the understanding that it would probably be impossible to arrange his business so as to continue at the head of the committee. The understanding between Mr. Campbell and the committee was explicit, and the matter was presented to the public just as it was.

Our Democratic friends need not fear that the Republican committee will be without a head. There will be as much leadership as they will care to cope with. And then the following—that is what will count when it makes its profound bow in the electoral college and begs to convey to the esteemed defeated Democracy renewed assurances of its most distinguished consideration.

They Didn't Know About Brice.

When the row was on and the rifles were cracking over Calvin S. Brice's Tennessee convict miners, did we hear the leather-lunged Democratic politicians advising American labor to vote the Republican ticket as the only logical protest?

Mr. Brice was chairman of the Democratic national committee, elected to the United States senate by a Democratic legislature. The Democratic politicians were dumb as clams.

Andrew Carnegie is so little an American that he has been talked of as a candidate for the British parliament, yet the Democratic politicians seem to regard him as a political issue in this campaign. This means that they are hard pressed for issues.

A Good Chance for Demagogues.

It is in order for Mr. Cleveland, taking the cue from the demagogues of his party, to write an able letter to the organized labor of the United States telling it how much better off it would be if it had to fight the whole world instead of some of its employers in its own country.

This is his theory and the theory of the tariff plank on which he stands. That theory is a great thing for demagogues of all degrees.

It is altogether becoming for the British press to take a far-away hand in an American trouble. They are so much interested in the prosperity of all things American, those British cousins of ours, and they have none of this sort of thing over there, over there.

If Speaker Crisp had the rules of the preceding house and the nerve of the preceding speaker, he could find a quorum for business often. It must exasperate him to see a quorum and be obliged to agree that there is no quorum.

If you can't get to the seashore or the mountains you can remain at home and wear your overcoat in the early morning and the chilly evening. The nimble mind will always find some compensation for the ills of life.

So far as Homestead knows, there is no state of Pennsylvania. There is the machinery of a state government, but it does not run. Chief Engineer Pattison doesn't seem able to find the throttle.

This is Weaver's second shot at the presidency. He will come no nearer to the bull's-eye than he did in 1880. Somehow or other, when he pulls the trigger he can't see the White House.

CLEVELAND, Weaver and Bidwell will have a chance to pose as the Graces. Harrison will keep right on doing business at the old stand to the satisfaction of a great country.

Is monopoly going to give "General" Stevenson a formal introduction to the country? Must he continue to play the ignoble role of a bound boy at a husking?

The high sheriff of Allegheny county has not what may be called a firm grip on the situation at Homestead. He is distinctly not in it.

THE HOMESTEAD TROUBLE

And the Tariff Question—An Answer to Democratic Demagogues.
 Correspondent in New York Press.

The Homestead strike at Pittsburgh is unfortunate, but strikes, like other misfortunes, will occur from time to time in prosperous as well as unprosperous years as long as there are nearly $80,000,000 in wages annually to be fought over. Iron is to-day selling lower than it ever did in the world's history, but this is only one of many causes of the strike. The Amalgamated Association or union has locked horns with the largest mill owners over only a single class of labor, but the more important questions at issue are the time at which each year's scale of wages shall be put in operation and the adoption of improved machinery.

The demagogic efforts of Democratic newspapers to turn the strike into an argument in favor of free trade will fall this year as it has so often failed before. Governor Campbell made Carnegie's great fortune the chief issue in his speeches throughout the iron districts of Ohio last fall, and the result was a gain of 30,471 in the Republican plurality against Campbell.

In Pittsburgh also Democratic orators told their hearers that in voting for the Republican candidates they were voting "to give Carnegie another $10,000,000—to make the rich richer and the poor poorer." This demagogic party cry was answered by the voters of Allegheny county, three-fifths of whom were iron workers, and all of whom were enabled to cast a secret ballot.

Election of 1890. Election of 1891.
 Republican.....35,012 Republican.....33,439
 Democratic.....33,170 Democratic.....17,764
 Rep. majority.....1,842 Rep. majority.....15,675
 Gain in the Republican plurality, 13,833. The Pittsburgh iron workers, a large proportion of whom earn excellent wages and own their own houses, understand the protection issue better than the Democratic orators or newspapers.

The free trade argument that if a wage dispute arises in a protected industry the remedy is to abolish the industry altogether is not one that appeals to Pittsburgh's 30,000 iron workers.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

A smart young man in Walla Walla, Wash., started out to have some fun by scaring two young women who were to return homeward through a wooded stretch of road after visiting friends in the evening. He put on a buffalo robe and started out to play bear. The girls attacked the supposed bear with heavy stones and then thumped it with clubs before the young man squealed. He was so badly bruised that he could hardly crawl home.

Some years ago the burial vault of the Chaplin family, at Blankney, in Lincolnshire, was opened, and it was ascertained that a large bat, which had been found within the place on several occasions when the vault was opened, was still a living inhabitant of the said vault. It was calculated that the bat had lived in the tomb thirty-three years.

A farmer of North Mahoning township, Pa., purchased some phosphate a few months ago. It was not all used and several pounds remained in a barrel, where a nest was made for a hen. The hen hatched thirteen chicks in sixteen days. Another hen was set at the same time, but it took her the usual time—three weeks—to bring out her brood.

A farmer living near Red Creek, N. Y., recently found a cow in the act of devouring the entire family wardrobe. She had already eaten a "pair of trousers, a vest, a cardigan jacket, two silk handkerchiefs, a pair of lady's walking shoes and the leg off a rubber boot."

Many of the fire-bombs which produce the greatest pyrotechnic effects are made in Japan. Their manufacture is a secret which has never been betrayed by them. Many American designs that go into the bombs were long ago sent to Japan and redrawn there.

An English naval officer has noticed that barbed wire has played the part of a peace-maker in Uruguay. It has tended to suppress revolutions by making it difficult to march troops across the country where it is used for fencing.

The distance between division points for changing railway engines has been increased in this country, and some roads are now running engines from 200 to 300 miles, where they used to run 100 miles or less.

A SONG TO BENJAMIN.

For the Intelligencer.
 We're coming, father Benjamin, we're coming right along.
 The votes are in our pockets now, and none of them are wrong.
 We're gathering from the valley, and we're gathering from the plain,
 And we're ready, with the ballots, to elect you once again.

We're coming, father Benjamin, get out the old White Hat.
 The one they call your Grandpapa's, and laugh and below at.
 Put it upon your well-fitted head, and let the Demagogues roar.
 They realize at last that you will run things four years more!

Their poor old "three-term" candidate, moth-eaten enough to strike hard to run the race, although it's plain to see.
 He needs a hat like Grandpapa's, yes, more and more each minute.
 And not alone the hat he needs, but something useful in it!

EVERARD JACK APPLETON.

THE only reason for Mr. Cleveland's nomination, and the thing that forced his nomination in spite of all the efforts of politicians, was the fact that, in the minds of the Democratic masses, he represents the idea of free trade. The platform is an unmistakable declaration against all parleying with protection. It puts the Democratic party in the field as committed to the policy of sweeping away every shred of a protective duty.—Henry George, the Free Trader.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was used for years as a prescription by a successful physician. It is in all respects the best cough medicine made to-day. Sold by all dealers on a guarantee of satisfaction.

IN 1890 it was a conflict of predictions, now our adversaries must face trade statistics and prices current.—President Harrison, June 21, 1892.

When Adul Will Be "Notified."

CHICAGO, July 7.—After consultation with Congressman Springer, General Black and other leading Democrats, Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic nominee for the vice presidency, stated this morning he would meet the committee on notification in New York City July 20. Mr. Stevenson will leave Chicago July 18. His law partner, W. C. Ewing, W. C. Gunday and other friends will accompany the nominee.

It is understood that a determined effort will be made to have the national committee open up a branch headquarters here, and a big fight is to be made to capture the electoral vote of Illinois.

The Storm on the Irish Coast.

LONDON, July 7.—The cessation in the gale off the south coast of Ireland yesterday was only a lull in the storm. Afterward the wind shifted and blew with renewed fury. The outlook became worse and worse, and finally last night orders were given for all hands to abandon the ship. The officers and crew were all ready for this and in a short time they went ashore. The steamer was left to her fate. At 2 o'clock this morning she broke in two amidships and the after portion went down in twelve fathoms of water.

A British View of the American Tariff.

Sheffield Daily Telegraph.
 "The promoters of the McKinley tariff meant it to push forward the policy of America for the Americas. One method of realizing it was to keep all work within their own dominions. The country was to be made self-sufficient; what could be produced at home was not to be bought abroad. That was the key-note of the McKinley scheme, and it is working out the idea of its designers with the precision and effectiveness of a machine."
